6. Extra help

- Disabled Students' Allowance - non repayable funding. Extra help is available to students with a disability, mental health conditions, or specific learning difficulties, and for students with children or adult dependents.
- Students with Children - non repayable funding.
- Adults Dependants' Grant - non repayable funding.
- Parents' Learning Allowance - non repayable funding.

Disabled Students' Allowance [DSAs]

May be available if you have a disability, mental health condition, or specific learning difficulty.

Remember that the Student Loans Company must be satisfied that your condition will mean that you have to spend more money while on your course.

Applications can be made before or during the course - the student may need to be reassessed.

The following help is available for students studying an eligible full time undergraduate course [including distance learning]

Specialist equipment allowance of up to £5,161 for the whole course

Non-medical helper's allowance of up to £20,520 each year

General students' allowance of up to £1,724 each year

Travel allowance to help with the extra travel costs incurred as a result of the disability.

This support is not means tested and is not repayable. Apply through SFE.

Do you qualify for HE Student Finance?

To qualify for student finance as a student from England, you will normally need to meet all three of the conditions on residence. This means that on the first day of the academic year in which your course starts, you must usually:

have been 'ordinarily resident' in the UK, the Channel Islands or the Isle of Man for the three years immediately before starting the course (and not wholly or mainly for the purpose of receiving full-time education) be a UK national or have 'settled status' in the UK (under the terms of the Immigration Act 1971). 'Settled status' means that there are no immigration restrictions on how long you can stay in the UK.

be 'ordinarily resident' in England

The Next Step - February 2011.

- Student completes & submits online application form - with the help of parents if possible - especially if applying for income assessed funding i.e. maintenance grant.
- Income assessed applications will be based on financial year *2009/2010 for 2011 entry - SFE will cross check Parent/s National Insurance Number against HMRC for proof of earnings.
- Evidence of student's identity is also needed. Current UK Passport - identity confirmed online - OR the student can send their birth certificate with proof of ID document, available from the SFE website. Photocopies can now be sent - not returned.
- Household Income - proof obtained via HMRC.

 Current Year Assessment possibility.

How much will university cost?

There are 2 types of costs you'll face in Higher Education

Tuition Fees.

Accommodation & day to day living expenses.

Tuition fees vary. See individual universities for their fees. The maximum for 2011 entry is £3,375. When applying for a tuition fee loan, you can apply for the full amount or a percentage.

Accommodation & living expenses are as individual as the person. University web sites usually have a rough guide.

Student Finance - Repayment - Student Tuition Fees & Loans

- You do not start paying until you are earning £15,000 per year before deductions:
This is equivalent to: £1,250 per month or £288 per week
If your income exceeds these amounts, you will be required to make repayments. In most cases, these repayments are collected automatically through the tax system.
- Repayments start the April after graduation - if you graduate in June 2015, repayment will begin April 2016.
- If you withdraw from your course before graduation, repayments start the following April or sooner.
- Any disability-related benefits you receive will not be counted towards the £15,000 threshold, even if they are taxable. If you receive a disability-related benefit and are permanently unfit for work, your loan will be cancelled.
- Once you start repaying your student loan, it is possible to repay your loan quicker, get a refund if your total income for the year does not exceed the repayment threshold or find out your student loan balance. Work out if this is to your advantage or not!

Student Finance - Repayment Figures

How much will I be paying?

1. Salary £17,000

-£15,000 [repayment is 9% of salary over £15,000]

=£2,000 [divided by 52 weeks]

=£38.45 [9%]

=£3.46 [per week]

2. Salary £25,000

=£10,000 [divided by 52 weeks]

=£192.30 [9%]

=£17.30 [per week]

Other repayment points of interest.

- Outstanding balance is wiped after 25 years
- Payments stop if earnings drop or employment ceases.
- The 'Student Loan Company' is responsible for the administration of Student Loans.
- Those who are in the UK Tax System will have their repayments deducted at source by their employers or through their self-assessed tax returns.
- Extra repayments can be made to the account at any time.
- Interest is charged to the outstanding balance until loans are repaid - the interest rate is in line with the rate of inflation and is calculated annually.

NHS Bursary.

A bursary is an annual payment awarded to assist with day to day living costs while you are studying. It also includes the cost of your tuition fees for the course. A bursary is not subject to income tax deductions or national insurance contributions. There are 2 types of bursary available, income assessed and non-income assessed.

The income assessed bursary is calculated using either your own income, your parents income, or that of your spouse, civil partner whichever is appropriate. [Degree Courses].

The non-income assessed bursary provides a flat basic maintenance grant and no contribution is required from your income or that of your family. [Diploma Courses].

Physiotherapist

Movement and physical activity are key factors in people's health. Physiotherapists treat people of all ages who have physical problems caused by illness, injury or ageing. They particularly concentrate on the limbs, neck and back, as well as on problems associated with poor circulation and breathing difficulties.

What will you do? You'll be working with individuals or small groups of people, to find ways of improving mobility and independence. There's a huge span of possible cases, from premature babies to the elderly with people of all ages in between. In each case you will use your skills and knowledge to develop appropriate treatment, using exercises, manipulation, heat, electrotherapy and hydrotherapy. You could be leading a child how to cope better with asthma, helping a young woman to prepare for childbirth, or encouraging someone to regain mobility before and after a physical condition after a stroke.

You will be part of a team with other health professionals, working in hospital wards such as intensive care, in a outpatient clinic or in the community. Patients may be referred by a doctor or will come to you directly. It's often a fairly intense, hands-on role so you'll need a good level of physical fitness. Because you'll be working in collaboration with patients during their treatment, it's important that you can gain their respect and confidence.

Where will you work?	What skills and qualities will you need?
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • You will be working in one or more of the following settings: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • hospitals – outpatient departments, intensive care units, surgical and medical wards • health centres – chi chi clinics dealing with problems such as back pain and knee/neck/leg/shoulder • the community – in private homes, schools and other care environments 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • good listening and communication skills • a caring, compassionate attitude • initiative and confidence in your own judgement • willingness to learn and continue learning • a good level of fitness • the ability to relate to a wide range of people • a responsible, professional approach

Operating department practitioner

Operating department practitioners (ODPs) are key members of the surgical team. They work closely with surgeons, anaesthetists and theatre nurses, ensuring equipment and instruments are prepared, assisting the surgical team and monitoring the condition of the patient before, during and after an operation.

What will you be doing? There are three phases to surgery: anaesthesia, the operation and recovery. You will be involved in all three, monitoring the state and comfort of the patient through the whole process. Before surgery begins, you will have prepared the equipment and drugs needed to anaesthetise the patient and maintain breathing during the procedure. During surgery you will be working closely with the surgeon, handing over the instruments to any other device needed, and maintaining strict aseptic conditions to prevent infection. In the recovery phase you will be with the patient as they wake from the anaesthetic, checking to make sure they can be safely returned to the ward.

It's a busy and varied role. One minute you could be handling high-tech equipment that's keeping a patient alive during major surgery. Then you could be holding their hand as they regain consciousness, providing reassurance and ensuring that all their vital signs are good. You'll be working as part of a highly-skilled, tightly-knit team where it's critical that everyone knows what they are doing.

The social work bursary is administered by the NHS Business Services Authority (NHSBSA) on behalf of the Department of Health, who fund and set policy for the bursary. Although the bursary is administered by the NHSBSA, it is not an NHS bursary.

The Department of Health introduced the bursary as an incentive to train in social work. The bursary package is non-income assessed.*

Unlike funding from Student Finance Direct, which is intended to assist with the cost of living, the bursary grant can be used towards study-related expenses and/or for any legal purpose you deem appropriate.

The bursary is administered under the Care Standards Act, which is the legislation authorising the NHSBSA to distribute public funds within the context of the bursary. The bursary scheme also adopts certain elements of the Education (Student Support) Regulations 2008. However, the scheme is not legally bound by these regulations.

An application must be submitted each year. The application form follows these instructions.

The deadline for bursary applications is 28 February 2009.

*The means we will not take into consideration such things as your or any other person's earnings, savings, dependent, mortgage or rent income, disability, special needs or any other special factor.

Social Work Bursary 2011 Entry & Course Fees

The amount paid depends on the course chosen and is set by the provider.

The HE provider determines the cost of the course.

The table below applies to students starting their degree course in 2008 [No change to the bursary figures for 2010 entry - 2011 figures unknown].

Undergraduate Student Category	Bursary
Fulltime course studying outside London	£4575
Fulltime course studying in London	£4975
Part time course in London	£2487.50
Part time course outside London	£2287.50

The bursary contains a contribution towards tuition fees and can be used to pay these if wished. The student decides how to use the bursary - to pay fees, to support the cost of living or perhaps invest it! A travel allowance for practice placements has been built into the bursary [£575 for fulltime students]. It is expected that the agency offering your placements will contribute towards the travel costs incurred.

Students are also eligible to apply for the standard student finance package [tuition fee loan, maintenance grant and loans, remember fees and loans are repayable]

Student Finance Calculator

Introduction

If you are from England and are thinking of going to college or university in academic year 2010/11, the Student Finance Calculator will provide you with a tailored estimate of the financial support you could receive.

The calculator gives an estimate of what's available for student loans, grants and scholarships and bursaries from your place of study.

The estimate is based on the information you give, so the more detail you can provide the more accurate the estimate will be.

Please note that the estimate you receive is not an offer of support. Once you submit an application you may need to provide supporting evidence, and Student Finance England will tell you what this is when you make your application.

To begin, select 'Create a new estimate' or, to retrieve an estimate that you have previously created, select 'Access a saved estimate'.
